

The annual University Student Volunteer of the Year Award honors Fresno State students who have made a difference in our community through exceptional gifts of their time and talent. If eligible, based on financial need, the award recipient will receive a single $1,500 scholarship. Simply nominating a student affirms and celebrates their efforts to improve the quality of life for those living in Central California. Self-nominations are accepted.

SELECTION CRITERIA:

- 1) Proof of extraordinary commitment to direct service that has a demonstrable impact on an issue or need in the Central Valley.
- 2) Preference will be given to students who are involved in volunteer (non-paid, non-stipend) service.
- 3) Service to the University can be included and will be considered, but the primary emphasis will be on direct service and impact in the community outside of the University.
- 4) Nominees must be currently enrolled Fresno State students (undergraduate, graduate, or doctoral).

One nomination per student will be accepted. A selection committee will review nominations and determine the award recipient.
